Christine Todd
Clarinetist, The Chelsea Symphony

Clarinetist Christine Todd began performing with The Chelsea Symphony in 2008. A CPA, Christine holds an MBA from Columbia University and BA/BS degrees in German and accounting from Binghamton University. Since completing her studies and pursuing her professional career in New York (formerly the Vice President and CFO of The Juilliard School, and now Controller of the Kaufman Music Center), Christine has performed with many area musical organizations in addition to The Chelsea Symphony, including the New York Repertory Orchestra, American Chamber Opera Company, Park Avenue Chamber Symphony, New Amsterdam Symphony Orchestra, Musica Bella Orchestra, Protestra, and the Gotham Winds, a wind quintet and chamber ensemble. Her clarinet teachers include Robin Seletsky, Tim Perry, Allen Blustine, and Jon Manasse. In addition to her musical activities as a performer, Christine serves on the boards of The Chelsea Symphony and the Cape Cod Chamber Music Festival.
